

Code of Conduct for Visiting School Groups

Please ensure this is shared with your students and all accompanying staff in order that everybody has a safe and enjoyable visit.

- Students remain the responsibility of school staff and accompanying adults at all times. It is important not to leave students unaccompanied in the exhibition spaces of We The Curious.
- Please remind students that We The Curious is a public attraction and other visitors on-site must be treated with respect and courtesy.
- There may be times when school groups share the Planetarium or school shows with other visiting groups or members of the public. We The Curious staff ask for the support of teachers to ensure excellent behaviour during these shows to ensure all audiences enjoy the experience.
- The We The Curious team wear We The Curious t-shirts or sweaters and have venue ID on a lanyard. They are here to help you make the most of your day. Students are asked to treat the We The Curious team with respect and to listen carefully to any instructions they give.
- The level of noise generated by the group must be within acceptable levels so as not to disturb other visitors.
- Lunch spaces should be kept clean and tidy after use as they are often within public areas of We The Curious.
- School groups are requested not to use lifts unless students have access needs.
- Students are to take care of themselves and others when moving around in We The Curious so we ask there is no running inside.
- We endeavour to keep our exhibits in good condition and working order by investing a great deal of time and money into their maintenance. Please support us in ensuring everyone's enjoyment by treating exhibits respectfully and if you need help using them, just ask!
- Our workshops are led by fully trained staff and we respectfully ask that school staff and accompanying adults remain in workshops to support the smooth running of activities. We The Curious reserves the right to ask schools whose pupils are being seriously disruptive to leave the site.
- We ask that medication is kept with a responsible adult during the visit to ensure ease of access for the child to their medication and to ensure safety of other pupils attending the venue.
